

Drama Production Memories 1965 Marty

If you saw the 1956 movie starring Academy Award winner Ernest Borgnine, you know the story: a nice but overweight single guy (Jeff Litman) finally finds love despite the negative pressure from his overbearing mother (Maddy DiMaggio) and loser friends (Barry Tuchman, Mike Enbody, Darryl Kutz.) We compressed the two-hour script down to 45 minutes but were generally pleased with the results. Laura Fetterman did a nice job as the wallflower Sarah, one of her few starring roles during her years in drama class.

(Notice how thin the ties were in those days.)
