

Reseda High School Memories

Annual Hush Day

Each year during “Girl’s Week” all the girls wore a “Hush Tag” and could not talk to any boys for that day. If a fellow made her talk (and there were rules about what a guy could and could not do) then she had to give him her tag. At the end of the day there was a “Hush Day Dance” at which the guy with the most tags was declared the winner. However all the girls who had avoided talking were also acknowledged (usually by the end of the day there weren’t many.)

Sample of Hush Day Tag above, photo of Hush Day winners at right (identities no longer remembered.)